Unitholder rights

Each unitholder has an undivided interest in the mutual fund corresponding to the individual's share of the total number of units in the fund issued.

Each unit in the mutual fund grants equal rights in the fund. The equal treatment of unitholders is a central pillar of legislation pertaining to mutual funds and the practices that Odin Forvaltning AS follows. Odin Forvaltning AS has further guidelines and procedures in place to ensure equal treatment and justifiable prevention and handling of potential conflicts of interest. These shall protect all unitholders in the fund. Further information about this is available upon request from Odin Forvaltning AS.

A unit holder is not entitled to demand division or liquidation of the mutual fund. The unitholders' liability for the obligations of the fund is limited to their initial deposit. Unit holders in the equity mutual funds that are managed by Odin Forvaltning AS elect one third of the Board members. The elections are held at election meetings pursuant to rules specified in the Articles of Association of Odin Forvaltning AS.

Unitholders should periodically receive information about their unit holdings in the fund and the value of these, as well as details of the returns for unitholders during the period and the current year. This information should be provided to unitholders for the first and second half of the year and should be issued no later than one month after the end of each period.

Transfer the management

With the consent of the Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway (Finanstilsynet), Odin Forvaltning AS may transfer the management of the mutual fund to another management company. The Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway may set conditions relating to the transfer time and how the transfer should be made public.

Liquidation

With the consent of the Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway, Odin Forvaltning AS may decide to liquidate a Mutual fund that the company manages. In that case, the unitholders will be notified of the liquidation pursuant to Section 5-7 of the Norwegian Securities Fund Act.

Purchase and redemption of units

The fund's units are not listed in a regulated market.

Calculation of net asset value (NAV)

The value of a fund is determined by adding the market value of the fund's financial instruments to the value of the fund's liquid assets/receivables, accrued but not due income and any carry-forward loss, and then subtracting any liabilities and accrued but not due costs, including latent tax liabilities and any payments to unit holders from the fund. Dividing the value of the fund by the number of units gives the net asset value. Where the value of a security is not observable, a value will be set by the management company on an objective and consistent basis.

The fund's net asset value is not calculated when markets in which an essential share of the fund's portfolio are invested are closed. Odin Forvaltning AS is not liable for customers' losses or damage in connection with the calculation of rates that are due to conditions beyond the company's control, e.g. power failure, strike, faults in data processing systems or telecommunications networks or errors committed by the company's sub-contractors.

Announcement of subscription and redemption prices

Information about the asset value is normally published daily by Oslo Børs ASA to a number of Norwegian newspapers and is also available on the company's website.

Procedures for subscription (purchase of units) and redemption (sale) or switching between funds

Subscription and redemption or switching take place c/o Odin Forvaltning AS. See also www.odinfond.no. Notification of subscription, redemption or switching of funds may be sent by post or electronic services approved by Odin Forvaltning AS.

Odin Forvaltning may, at its sole discretion, choose to accept subscriptions, redemptions and fund switches from existing unitholders in the fund via other channels of communication.

The fund is normally open for subscription, redemption and switching on all business days in Norway and closed when pricing for the underlying securities is not available for some or all the fund due to national markets being closed.

Subscriptions and redemptions

The deadline for subscriptions, redemptions or fund switches is 12 noon each business day.

Subscriptions can be executed when written notification containing the information required for subscription has been received by Odin Forvaltning AS, an amount equal to the subscription value has been value dated on the fund's account by the deadline and any identity checks have been completed. Notifications regarding subscription to fund units cannot be made conditional or be cancelled.

Pursuant to the Norwegian Cancellation Act of 20 June 2014, no right to cancel applies to purchases of units in securities funds. Units can be subscribed to in the currency of each unit class. See the minimum subscription amounts per unit class below.

To redeem units, written notification of the redemption containing the information required must be received by Odin Forvaltning AS by the deadline. Redemption claims cannot be made conditional or be cancelled. Payments for redeemed units will be made to the specified bank account, normally two business days after the price has been determined. Payments for redeemed units are made in the currency of the unit class.

Prices for subscriptions, redemptions and fund switches will be determined on the same business day, except for funds that have price determination on the next business day.

Suspension of the right of redemption

In the event of a stock exchange closure or other, similar extraordinary circumstances, as well as in cases where it is justified based on unitholders' interests, Odin Forvaltning AS may seek the Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway's consent to wholly or partially postpone the valuation and payment of redemptions.

In assessing whether such a measure should be implemented, Odin Forvaltning AS will place particular emphasis on ensuring equal treatment of the fund's unitholders.

If the interests of unitholders or the public interest dictates it, the Financial Supervisory Authority of Norway may also instruct Odin Forvaltning AS to wholly or partially suspend redemptions.

Currency

The fund's basic currency is Norwegian kroner (NOK).

Mechanisms to safeguard the interests of existing unit holders in the fund

To prevent existing unit holders from being harmed because of subscriptions and redemptions that other unit holders make in the fund, the fund can use "swing pricing". This means that the fund's price is adjusted with a swing factor on days when the fund has had net subscription or redemption that exceeds a predetermined proportion of the fund's management capital (threshold value). The threshold value is set to the level where net subscription or redemption is expected to mean that the fund must make portfolio adjustments that incur costs. Net subscription above the set threshold value results in the fund's price being adjusted upwards, and vice versa for net redemption. The fund thus covers the costs because of portfolio adjustments.

The size of the swing factor (expressed as a proportion of the fund's value) is based on predefined estimates of average historical trading costs within the fund's investment mandate. The procedure for swing pricing is in accordance with VFF's (the Norwegian Fund and Asset Management Association) industry standard for subscription and redemption, available at www.vff.no.

The fund's goal

The fund invests in private limited companies around the world that contribute to a more sustainable future. The fund's long-term goal is to achieve a higher return than the fund's benchmark index/global stock markets.

The fund's benchmark index

The fund's benchmark index is Morningstar Developed Markets Large-Mid Cap NR USD. The benchmark index is adjusted for dividends. The purpose of the benchmark index is not sustainability.

The fund's investment strategy

The fund is an actively managed equity fund and can freely invest in companies throughout the whole world.

The fund manager invests freely within the framework of the mandate in what the fund manager thinks are good, undervalued companies.

The fund is index-independent – importance is not attached to the size of the companies or to their market indices. Investments in the fund are made based on a quantitative and qualitative analysis, and the intention is to select companies that promote sustainability within the following topics:

- Renewable energy and energy efficiency measures
- Small carbon footprint
- Circular economy and efficient resource utilisation
- Sustainable transport and infrastructure
- Water management
- Protection of biodiversity and ecosystems
- Health, quality of life and social inclusion

We place strict demands on the responsibility of the companies, but beyond this, the fund manager selects freely the companies in which they wish to invest, regardless of which companies are included in the fund's benchmark index.

To improve the creation of wealth and/or highlight the values in the companies in which the fund is invested, Odin's fund managers also spend time exercising shareholders' rights on behalf of the fund's unit holders.

Sustainability

Odin Forvaltning AS has developed guidelines for the responsible management of securities funds that apply to all the funds under management. The guidelines are based on the UN Principles for Responsible Investment (UN PRI), which Odin Forvaltning AS signed up to in 2012. In line with the guidelines, sustainability risk must form an integral part of all investment decisions. Sustainability risks are environmental, social or governance incidents or circumstances that may have a real or potentially significant negative impact on the value of an investment should they occur. The extent of the sustainability risk varies between companies, sectors, markets, and the time horizon of an investment. Sustainability risk in the fund and in an individual investment consists of exposure to these factors.

Such integration includes ESG analyses of companies before and during an investment period, as well as screening portfolios at regular intervals. The process of selecting the companies the funds will invest in is in part based on these analyses, and companies are not invested in when their sustainability risk is deemed too high. Sustainability risk is one of several factors that affect each investment and the fund's return.

An ESG-analysis of each of the fund's holdings seeks to reduce the fund's sustainability risk, and the risk of negative impact on returns from the occurrence of sustainability-related incidents or circumstances.

Odin Forvaltning AS is supposed to be an active owner in the companies the funds invest in and encourages companies to become more sustainable. It does this through voting, direct engagement with the companies and cooperation with other investors.

Odin Forvaltning AS expects companies the funds invest in to conduct their business responsibly and companies that fail to demonstrate an ability or willingness to remedy situations that do not meet expectations will be eliminated from its portfolios. The complete guidelines for the responsible management of securities funds in Odin Forvaltning AS are available from the company's website. When the board or management of a company demonstrates an inability and/or unwillingness to take account of environmental and social conditions, we view this as a sign of poor corporate governance.

Odin Forvaltning AS is, therefore, committed to ensuring that the companies we invest in practise good management and corporate governance. We believe this contributes to good long-term returns.

This fund is classified as a fund that has sustainability as its purpose as defined in Article 9 of Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector.

The fund selects companies that make a significant contribution to a more sustainable future in the following areas:

- Renewable energy and energy transition
- Sustainable buildings and infrastructure
- Sustainable transport
- Circular economy and efficient use of resources
- Health, quality of life and social inclusion

It is a prerequisite that companies that are selected do not cause significant damage to any of the other sustainability objectives. The fund excludes certain industries that have a materially negative impact on social or environmental conditions.

Furthermore, assessments of sustainability and corporate governance are key elements in the process of selecting the companies in which the fund will invest. More information about how the fund invests to achieve the sustainability goals set for the fund and good corporate governance is available in the addendum to the prospectus.

The fund is typically characterised by relatively high levels of risk in relation to fluctuations in the value of the fund's units over time (volatility).

Returns and risk

For up-to-date information on the historical returns and risk of the fund, see the key information for the fund. Updated return information can also be found on the company's website, see section 1 of this Prospectus.

The historical return is no guarantee of future return. Among other things, the future return will depend on the market trend, the fund manager's skilfulness, the fund's risk and the costs of subscription, investment management and redemption. The return may be negative as a result of share losses.

The fund's return may fluctuate during a year. Realised losses or gains from investing in fund units will therefore be dependent on the exact time of purchase and sale.

Tax

The following sets out briefly the tax regulations that apply to mutual funds and unitholders. The following information does not constitute tax advice.

Rules and practices in the area of taxation law are under constant development and may be subject to amendments in the future, and these may have a retroactive effect.

Odin Forvaltning AS may be obligated to provide information about unitholders' holdings in Odin's Equity Mutual Fund to Norwegian and foreign authorities notwithstanding statutory duty of non-disclosure. Please contact your local tax consultant for more information.

Tax rules applicable to the mutual fund

This fund is tax domiciled in Norway. Ordinary income is taxed at 22 per cent (2025). However, the fund is exempt from tax liability on equity gains and does not allow for deductions in lieu of losses when realising shares. Dividends and gains from investments that fall under the exemption method are also tax-free, except for three per cent of tax-free dividends. Net interest income, foreign exchange gains, dividends from companies outside the exemption method and capital gains on interest-bearing securities are included in taxable income for the fund. Deductions from the fund's taxable income include deductible costs. The fund's management fee is usually the most significant cost item in this regard.

The fund is exempt from wealth tax.

The fund does not pay dividends.

Tax for private investors with tax liability in Norway

Gains from the realisation of units in mutual funds are included in ordinary income. Ordinary income is taxed at 22 per cent, but the rate for equity income is adjusted upwards by a factor of 1.72, which results in an effective tax rate of 37.84 per cent (2025).

Gain deducted from the deductible allowance are taxed at 37.84 per cent as the fund's equity proportion is greater than 80 per cent. Losses upon the realisation of units in mutual funds are deductible and are adjusted upwards by the same factor (1.72). Exchange of unit classes in the same fund does not initially entail a taxable disposal.

Fund units are included in taxable capital calculation. Shares in securities funds are valued at the asset value on 1 January of the tax determination year. Share units in securities funds are valued at 80 per cent of the share unit's value (2025).

Share savings accounts

Personal taxpayers' resident in the EEA can establish a share savings account. Deposits on the account can be used to invest in listed shares and equity certificates in companies domiciled in the EEA, and units in equity funds domiciled in the EEA (mutual funds with a more than an 80% proportion of shares at the start of the income year).

Gains from the realisation of listed shares, listed equity certificates, and units in equity funds linked to the share savings account are not liable for tax and losses do not provide a right to a deduction. The same applies to dividends from such ownership interests.

Withdrawals from the account are initially considered to be repayment of deposits. Withdrawals up to the amount the account holder has deposited are not taxed, although they do reduce the basis for the dividend tax exemption.

Withdrawals in excess of deposits into the account will be regarded as subject to tax after the deduction of any dividend tax exemption are taxed at a rate of 37.84 per cent (2025).

The dividend tax exemption is calculated based on the lowest deposit balance on the account during the income year plus the unused dividend tax exemption from previous years. The exemption will be assigned to the account holder as of 31 December of the income year. In the case of account holder's resident abroad, withdrawals in excess of deposits into the account will be regarded as dividends.

For account holder's resident abroad, withdrawals in excess of deposits into the account will be regarded as dividends and may be subject to withholding tax. However, for account holder's resident abroad, gains from the realisation of shares, equity certificates or equity fund units linked to the account are considered deposits into the account, while losses reduce the deposits.

When share savings accounts are closed, the balance on the account less the deposit on the account is taxed in the same way as withdrawals. If the balance on the account is lower than the deposits on the account, the difference is regarded as a loss on shares which is deductible. The loss is adjusted by a factor of 1.72 (2025).

Individual Pension Savings (IPS)

Fund units may be included in IPS. Deposits into IPS result in deferral of tax.

IPS schemes bought before 1 November 2017 will comply with the old tax rules for IPS schemes. New unit holders were not permitted to buy IPS schemes based on the old tax rules from this date. The old scheme rules allow you to save up to NOK 15,000 per annum. The amount saved can be deducted from ordinary income and payments are taxed as personal income. The earliest payout age under the old scheme is 62 years old and the funds must be paid out at least until you turn 77, and in any case for at least 10 years.

Unit holders with fund units in an IPS scheme purchased after 1 November 2017 can save up to NOK 15,000 per year (2025). The amount saved can be deducted from ordinary income, but such that if payments are made in both the old and new schemes in the same income year, the deductions pursuant to the two schemes shall be coordinated so that the total deduction does not exceed NOK 15,000 (2025).

Payments are taxed as ordinary income. The earliest payout age is 62 years old, and the funds must be paid out at least until you turn 80, and in any case for at least 10 years.

The funds deposited in the scheme are exempt from wealth tax and ongoing income tax on the return. Tax is charged when a withdrawal is made.

Company investors (legal persons)

Companies that are covered by the exemption method are not liable to tax on any gains upon the realisation of units in funds with an equity proportion in excess of 80 per cent. Corresponding losses are not deductible. Net losses may not be deducted either during the income year or by being carried over to later years.

Tax for unitholders with tax liability outside Norway

Unitholders with tax liabilities in countries other than Norway are encouraged to examine the tax regulations in their respective countries.

Obligations of the custodian institution

The custodian institution's obligations are pursuant to the Norwegian Securities Funds Act and the Act on the Management of Alternative Investment Funds, as well as associated regulations.

The total cost basis for each of the unit holder's aggregate subscriptions and redemptions in the unit class is calculated on 31st March and 30th September every year.

If the unit holder's total cost price at the time of calculation meets the minimum requirement in a (comparable) unit class with a lower management fee, the customer's asset value will be transferred to this unit class.

If the unit holder's total cost basis at the time of calculation does not satisfy the minimum requirement for the class of units the unit holder has invested in, the customer's asset value will be transferred to a (comparable) class of units where the total cost basis satisfies the minimum requirement.

The transfer of the asset value to another comparable class of units shall be registered on the same day that the calculation is carried out and reported to the unit holder as soon as possible.
